Mickey's songs aren't ideas. They are ideas translated into feelings. Not abstractions about life, but emotional statements about his life. That is why they are so real, and that is why they cut so deeply into the souls of all who hear them. Mickey is a member of the Songwriter's Hall of Fame, the Texas Country Music Hall of Fame, the Texas Heritage Songwriter's Association and a recipient of the President's Award from the Americana Music Association.

The Genres
Asked why his music is so engaging, Mickey Newbury said, “I always wanted to sing to my audience rather than down to them. I just believed it was easier to influence people through their hearts rather than intellectually.” For Newbury, the “strategy” worked. Everybody from Ray Charles to Paul Big Bear has recorded his songs.

Since 1965, over the past 5½ decades, 1,565 Newbury covers have been recorded by artists representing 51 genres of music. Notably, 1,253 artists have interpreted 133 Newbury compositions as pop, folk, funk, jazz, rock, soul, blues, steel, Latin, gospel, reggae, ragtime, country, baby-sing, bluegrass, R&B, big band, karaoke, western swing, Motown sound, children’s music and easy listening. Weighing in esoterically are cuts in the Celtic domain, as well as opera, barbershop, synthesizer, pipe organ, stage musical, marching band, comedy-spoof, Spanish ballad, Spanish guitar, Scottish piper and German-Hamburger. Likewise, Newbury tracks have been laid down expressly for dancing, i.e. for waltz, disco, polka, rumba, tango, cha-cha and square dance. Hard rockers have been Newbury’d too, dressing Mick’s “children” in rap, punk, lo-fi, metal, death metal, post-metal, techno-metal, techno-sample and psychedelia.

Endorsement by over 1,200 artists representing 50 genres of the world’s music is more than just noteworthy. Make no mistake about it... Mickey Newbury is one of the most widely interpreted songwriters in history. And still, a few uninformed reviewers continue to pen the man and his influence in a single country corral. Vaguely familiar with a smidgen of Newbury’s oeuvre and not spending sufficient time to research the subject, a lazy or rushed critic pigeonholes the music. Then, as the expert’s proclamation gets plagiarized repeatedly, the apocryphal information gets passed along dilettantly... until it becomes The Truth.

But the truth is all that matters, and the truth is that this piper spun his delicacies for many artists of different styles. As history demonstrates, his open architecture permits a wide variety of interpretation. “At one time,” Newbury recalled, “I had four songs on the charts, one each in a different chart.” The songs simultaneously held stellar positions with styles as disparate as “Sweet Memories” (Easy Listening # 1) by Andy Williams, “Time Is A Thief” (R&B # 1) by Solomon Burke, “Here Comes The Rain Baby” (Country # 1) by Eddy Arnold, and “Just Dropped In To See What Condition My Condition Was In” (Pop / Rock # 5) by The First Edition.

The Roots
When asked about the accomplishment, Mick said, “So here’s what happened. Growing up in country music, being subjected to the blues for that short period when I was a teenager (in Houston, Texas), and then the rock era. You go through that, man, and you got an education that kind of... well, there has to be a product that comes out of it that’s a combination of the three.” Though his humble nature is commendable, Newbury can be summarily described as a sophisticated country boy. William Hedgepeth expanded on the topic in a Look magazine article, writing, “Mickey’s physical concession to ‘countrymom’ is that he wears cowboy boots and has ‘Mom&Dad’ tattooed on his arm. Otherwise, he is mildly long of hair, uses a classic-style guitar and punctuates his thoughts with ‘man’.” This helps to explain why popular TV host Ralph Emery referred to Newbury as the first “hippie cowboy.” And why silver-tongued Kris Kristofferson called him, “One of the most confoundingly complex bundles of contradictions walking the streets today.”

Writer Dave McElfresh brings the subject down to earth with an earthy proclamation: “Newbury is, in a number of ways, far from representing the typical Southern music writer. He plays a gut string classical guitar, has tonsils so pure and powerful he could probably sing opera, and writes songs so delicate they radically stretch country’s s----kickin’ honky-tonk persona in the opposite direction.”

Perhaps Record Collector magazine says it best: “Calling this guy country is like saying Mozart wrote some nice tunes.” To cut a long story short, Mickey Newbury, a “complex bundle of contradictions” to be sure, combined a deep love of writing autobiographical poetry (he called it “robbing the dragon”) with a diverse musical background gleaned in Dixie and England.

The Songs

Pareto’s Principle (“the 80/20 rule”) loosely applies... 84% of Newbury covers have come from 19% of the songs (1,315 of 1,565 covers and 25 of 132 songs). This Top 25 list begins with a song that is larger than life:

1. Imagine merging Civil War era songs of the North, South and African-American slaves into one unified movement. On a starry evening in May of 1970 while appearing on stage at the Bitter End West, Newbury did just that. The impromptu arrangement just came together on that magical night and in one moment of brilliant inspiration. Since then, “An American Trilogy” has become one of the most interpreted pieces in history with 560 versions, ranging from the London Symphony Orchestra to Elvis Presley’s glitzy Vegas production, eagle cape and all. At the end of 1999, some 600,000 people in the U.K. selected Presley’s version of “Trilogy” as the number one American song of the millennium. That survey, a joint effort undertaken by HMV, Channel 4 and Classic FM, required 12 months to complete. And in 2008, a crowning benediction, England’s Whitehaven Male Voice Choir performed “An American Trilogy” for Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

   Constructed of “Dixie” slowed to a quarter-time ballad (I wish I was in the land of cotton), “Battle Hymn of the Republic” (Glory glory hallelujah) and “All My Trials” (So hush little baby / Don’t you cry / You know your daddy’s bound to die)... the People’s Anthem binds century-old Southern, Northern and minority issues into a common lament. The song, Brian Hinton wrote, has become “the ultimate example of Americana. It somehow evokes the birth of modern America.” Actually, the movement has grown. From America to South Africa, the song has become a pillar in the repertoire of church groups and male voice choirs the world over.

2. Next in line comes the smokin’ bluegrass standard, “Why You Been Gone So Long,” recorded by 161 artists, including Phish, Carl Perkins and Gene Clark of Byrds fame. Mickey’s friend, Johnny Darrell, was first to cut this fun run through the song, performing it as a light rocker. His version rose to # 17 on the charts.

3. A ballroom waltz, “Funny Familiar Forgotten Feelings,” follows with readings by 114 artists, including Buffy St. Marie and Englebert Humperdinck. “FFFF” was first released by Don Gibson in February of 1966, and it reached the Top 10 on country charts. Two months later, Tom Jones recorded the tune as a pop ballad, and it became an international hit in Europe and Latin America. The song has been recorded in at least seven languages: Czech, Danish, English (of course), Finnish, Swedish, Romanian and Belgian-Dutch (Flemish). For Mick’s first commercial songwriting success, he received three BMI awards and a royalty check of $8,000. His next move? With loose 100-dollar bills in a brown paper bag, he purchased a gold Cadillac Eldorado, and then... he wound up sleeping in it!

4. A Newbury signature ballad, “Sweet Memories,” joins the party with 78 interpretations by a wide range of performers including funky Etta James, Leon Russell, seven duet teams and one famous trio. Several artists have enjoyed hits with the piece, including Dottie West, Andy Williams and Willie Nelson. In 2008, the Time Jumpers with Dawn Sears were nominated for a Grammy Award for their moving performance of “Sweet Memories.” The song earned Newbury a BMI “Millionaire Award,” signifying one million radio airplays.

5. Country music is well represented by a bittersweet tear jerker, “She Even Woke Me Up To Say Goodbye.” Soaked in double entendre, Newbury’s powerful words (It’s not her heart, Lord, it’s her mind) are delivered on the wings of beautiful melody. In 1969, Jerry Lee Lewis scored a Number Two Hit with “She Even,” promptly turning the piece into a jukebox pick and bar-room singalong. Rockers Del Shannon and Keith Richards of the Rolling Stones are a few of the 57 artists who have cut it.

6. At the other end of the spectrum where psychedelia lies, the antidrug ditty “Just Dropped In (To See What Condition My Condition Was In)” has been delivered by 55 performers, including Bettye LaVette, Australian post-punk protagonist Nick Cave and worldclass accordionist Myron Floren of Lawrence Welk fame. The song, a warning of the danger in using LSD, launched Kenny Rogers’ career into the stratosphere. Featuring Glen Campbell on backwards guitar, the First Edition/Rogers rendition has been used in two movies, “The Big Lebowski” starring Jeff Bridges and 2010’s “Faster” with Billy Bob Thornton. Finally, as performed by funk diva Sharon Jones, Just Dropped In was featured in the 2008 movie, Soul Men, starring Bernie Mac and Samuell L. Jackson. Jimi Hendrix reportedly commented to Rogers that the song was his favorite.

7. Rolling on next is the happy honky-tonkin’ romp, “How I Love Them Old Songs.” Uncharacteristically up-tempo for a Newbury piece, the infectious tune has been waxed by a diverse lot of 41 warblers, including four square-dance ensembles, Broadway’s Carol Channing and British iconic rocker, Gene Vincent.
8. “San Francisco Mabel Joy” is a folk song that tells the touching story of a Georgia farm boy, who “had 15 years and an ache inside to wander / So he hopped a freight in Waycross and wound up in L.A.” As we’re drawn into the masterful fusion of poetry and melody, we are given a fair idea how the Shakespearean tragedy will play out; and then, as our hero reaches the end, we are treated to an O. Henry twist. The song has been cut by 22 artists and has appeared on some best-selling albums. Written during the era of the 2½ minute hit, the five-minute saga is featured on Joan Baez’ double platinum album “Blessed Are,” John Denver’s platinum album “Some Days Are Diamonds,” and Kenny Rogers’ multi-platinum LP “The Gambler.”

9. “Frisco Depot,” wrote music critic Don Negri, “should be required listening / reading for anyone aspiring to be a real songwriter. Supposedly a reference to a visit to San Francisco by Mickey in the late sixties, the City by the Bay becomes a metaphor for the distances that separate us from our dreams, from each other and from ourselves. This is a richly layered song, as each stanza, feeding lyrically off the preceding, develops a new, yet complementary theme. The choice of words, their positioning, the way they play off each other, are simply masterful.” The song has been recorded by 19 artists, including Darrell Scott and Scott Walker.

10. A mantra for the lovesick, “Remember The Good,” has been recorded by 18 artists, including balladeers, Brook Benton, Roy Orbison and Glenn Yarbrough. Like Orbison’s “Running Scared,” the song is structured as an operatic crescendo rising to a climactic last verse. There is Good Karma here… accentuate the positive… respect the memory… it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

11. “Makes Me Wonder If I Ever Said Goodbye” has been recorded by 17 artists, including Kenny Rogers and Mex-Tex star Johnny Rodriguez, who scored a number two hit in 1976 with the country ballad.

12. “Poison Red Berries” (also called “I Don’t Think About Her No More”) follows with versions by 16 artists, including Don Williams, Tammy Wynette and Rob Wanders, a baritone opera singer from The Netherlands. With a line comparing poison to a lost love, the song’s crux explains the deal: “Yesterday’s gone and better forgotten / Like a poison red berry it clings to my mind.”

13. Wish I Was (“Willow Tree”) is a prayer for humility and has been released by 16 artists, such as Newbury Syndicate (with Mick’s son Chris Newbury), Norwegian artist Paal Flaata and rap group (!) CunninLynguists.

Several additional Newbury songs have been covered eight or more times:

An army of artists throughout the world have recorded an additional 108 Newbury-penned songs.

The Artists

Over the past 54 years, a steady stream of artists have stepped up to the mic to interpret a Newbury tune. From 101 Strings to 1100 Springs, this ever-growing club of 1,253 members includes many respected acts; several have honored Newbury by performing a good number of his songs. Don Gibson, writer extraordinaire (“I Can’t Stop Loving You”), covered a dozen Newbury compositions; and in his distinctive style, Roy Orbison praised his pal by recording 10 of his songs. (It is intriguing that The Big O released only 5 of the recordings.) Famous Norwegian artist Paal Flaata has interpreted 10 Newbury tunes, while Waylon Jennings covered 9. Also drawing frequently from the Newbury well are Sue Thompson (with 8)... and Tom Jones, Kyle Esplin, Sammi Smith, Kenny Rogers and Johnny Rodriguez (all with 7 each).
In number of Newbury tunes covered, the above artists are followed by:

* 6 Roy Acuff Jr., Joan Baez, Willie Nelson
* 5 Frank Ifield, Jerry Lee Lewis, Ron Peterson
* 4 Stephen Ackles, Johnny Darrell, Mickey Gilley, Brenda Lee, Wayne Newton, Buffy St. Marie, Dottie West, Larry Jon Wilson
* 3 Apropos (a trio with Mick’s daughter, Laura Shayne Cherry), Eddy Arnold, Glenn Barber, Brook Benton, Box Tops, Jim Ed Brown, Anita Carter, Kate Ceberano, Ray Charles, Don Cherry, David Allan Coe, Jimmy Elledge, Euson, Neal Ford, Chris Fraser, David Frizzell, Greg Futch, Gene & Debbe, Jack Greene, Clay Hart, B.B. King, Kingston Trio, Al Murphy, Jeannie Seely, Johnny Tillotson.

From Perry Como to Jerry Garcia of the Grateful Dead, hundreds upon hundreds of additional artists have recorded one or two Newbury songs. The covers, it seems, are spread everywhere.

The Tributes

At the climax of the disco dance movement, Bill Woody saluted Newbury with a de facto tribute in that genre. Dressing six Newbury “children” in bright polyester, the MCA LP was fittingly titled “Organized Noise.” About the same time, British country artist Thom Fricke released an album titled “Summer of Roses,” containing six Newbury songs on side one and Willie Nelson material on the flip.

The art is as compelling today as yesterday, as demonstrated by the release of eight Newbury tribute albums. Peter Blackstock and Chris Eckman, editors of No Depression music magazine, produced the first exclusive tribute to Mickey in 2000. Titled “Frisco Mabel Joy Revisited,” contemporary versions of songs from Newbury’s classic 1970 LP are performed by Bill Frisell, Kris Kristofferson and several others.

Cowboy Johnson, an ex-rodeo rider from Texas, was next out of the chute in 2004 with “A Grain of Sand,” a tribute album containing 12 covers. Mick’s good friend Jonmark Stone recorded 14 of the piper’s tunes too, 12 with classically trained violin virtuoso Marie Rhines on their 2005 CD, “When I Heard Newbury Sing.”

Who has recorded the most Newbury songs? A talented Nashville lady who serves as an ordained minister, Toni Jolene Clay, covered 15 of his tracks, 11 on her 2005 CD, “Amen For Old Friends.” The great gospel singer’s album contains a rare treat… duets with Mickey on the title track and “How’s The Weather.”

Nashville’s Queen of Comedy has also recorded 15 Newbury songs on her 2006 album, “Kacey Jones Sings Mickey Newbury.” The critically acclaimed CD was released with a superb music video of Kacey performing “San Francisco Mabel Joy.” Produced by songwriter Stacy Dean Campbell, the black and white production stars Kristofferson, Waylon Payne and Mickey’s youngest daughter, Laura Shayne Newbury Cherry.

A folk singer-songwriter released an album in 2007 containing 12 Newbury songs. The popular troubadour and famous actor (Deliverance, Beverly Hills Cop, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue) knew Mickey well. Titled “How I Love Them Old Songs - Ronny Cox Sings Mickey Newbury,” the tribute was produced by Mickey’s friend and guitar ace, Jack Williams. (While singing Newbury songs on stage during the 2007 Folk Alliance Festival in Memphis, Ronny referred to Mickey as “the man with the greatest voice in the history of the world.”)

Norwegian (albeit Americana) singer-songwriter Paal Flaata released an album in 2014, titled “Bless Us All - Songs of Mickey Newbury.” Containing eight Newbury compositions, the album also includes two Flaata-penned tribute songs to Newbury by this former member of the Norwegian group, Midnight Choir.

Released in 2014, “Rob Wanders Sings Mickey Newbury” contains 12 songs, which are performed by this Dutch baritone and professional opera singer. Mr. Wanders studied at the Conservatory of Amsterdam, and he has performed with the Netherlands National Opera and The Bach Choir of The Netherlands.

Andrew Pattison, former owner of the famous “Troubadour” music club in Melbourne, Australia, arranged for Mickey to perform there in 1984. Thirty-four years later, in late 2018, Mr. Pattison arranged for the recording of a Newbury tribute by 14 (mostly) Australian artists, including Kristina Olsen, Doug Ashdown, Gina Jeffreys and Graeme Connors. Titled “Country Folk Sing Mickey Newbury,” the compilation album includes Newbury songs from the sixties, seventies and eighties.

Songs in tribute to Mickey have been recorded by Doug Lang, Doug Spears, Paal Flaata, Philip White, Jonmark Stone, The 5 Jets, Bill Callahan, Egbert Meyers, Jerry Hawkins, Kris Kristofferson, and the Neon Philharmonic (Tupper Saussy/Don Gant).
The Reverence
As a writer’s writer, Mickey is highly praised by the crème de la crème:

★ John Prine: “Mickey Newbury is probably the best songwriter ever.”
★ Steve Earle: “Mickey is the godfather of all of us Texas writers… His voice blows my mind.”
★ Steve Young: “What a great and soulful writer he was. He is and always will be a hero of mine.”
★ Sam Phillips: (of Sun Records) “One of the greatest songwriters and performers… a rare talent.”
★ Willie Nelson: “He was one of the best writers we’ve ever had and one of the best friends I’ve ever had.”
★ Lorrie Morgan: “My greatest teacher was Mickey, who would sit with me for hours and explain songwriting to me...”
★ Ronny Cox: “Mickey was my hero. I used to do two-hour gigs and do nothing but Newbury. You can’t do much better.”
★ Jennifer Warnes: “Mickey is one of my all-time favorite songwriters. He wrote such beautiful songs.”
★ Waylon Jennings: “If you don’t like to hear Mickey Newbury, you’re not American.” Waylon also spoke of “Hank Williams’ pain songs and Newbury’s train songs…”
★ Larry Jon Wilson: “Newbury was and is in my broadest memory my favorite songwriter. There’s no question of that. There’s him there alone and then there’s all the rest of us.”
★ Tom Russell: “I’d tell him how much I loved his songs. He was the master of the middle tempo ballad... Killer songs and sentiments. Few of us would have the guts to write like that.”
★ Johnny Cash: Mickey’s neighbor on Old Hickory Lake referred to Mickey as a “poet” and in 1971 on national TV, Johnny introduced him as “one of the finest writers in the country.”
★ Larry Gatlin: “In 1971, Dottie West told me I looked enough like Mickey that I had to be able to write songs. I might have looked like him, but I sure couldn’t write like him. He was one of a kind.”
★ Brenda Lee: “Anyone who pays tribute to the great Mickey Newbury is a friend of mine. One of the most prolific songwriters ever, his music will continue to touch the emotions of generations to come.”
★ Guy Clark: “Mickey was a unique, one-of-a-kind son of a gun to sing as well as he did. Crystalline. Pure. And to do those guitar and vocal arrangements in his head, and play that all out loud. He could do anything musical.”
★ Rodney Crowell: “When I first showed up in Nashville, Mickey was sort of the high priest. I was really transformed by Mickey, and for many years, I emulated Mickey Newbury... Just he and a gut-string guitar: a one man opera.”
★ Joan Baez: “There was something very special about Mickey. He wrote endlessly... beautiful, heart-wrenching, sad scores of music, and I’m not sure where all that came from; he was very pleasant. I just considered him a friend.”
★ Kris Kristofferson: “God, I learned more about songwriting from Mickey than I did any other single human being. To me he was a songbird. He comes out with amazing words and music... I’m sure that I never would have written Bobby McGee, Sunday Morning Coming Down... if I had never known Mickey. He was my hero and still is.”

The Accolades
Newbury was enshrined into the Songwriter’s Hall of Fame in 1980, an honor well deserved, as confirmed by the standing ovation he received from fellow artists. In 2006, Newbury was again publicly praised, when the Americana Music Association selected him to receive the President’s Award, given in posthumous recognition of outstanding musical achievement. On stage at the Ryman, Mickey’s mother, Mamie, proudly accepted the award on behalf of her son. In 2008, Mickey was inducted into the Texas Country Music Hall of Fame; and in 2018, he was inducted into the Texas Heritage Songwriter’s Association.

The Countries
For over half a century, artists have weaved a rich tapestry with Newbury music. The covers are spread all over America and on all continents except Antarctica, though this discographer would bet that someone on that frozen tundra has waxed Newbury. His songs have been recorded in 32 countries, including: France, Spain, Wales, Brazil, China, Japan, Norway, Poland, Russia, Sweden, Turkey, Belgium, Denmark, England, Finland, Iceland, Ireland, Scotland, Italy, Canada, Austria, Germany, Jamaica, Australia, Philippines, Bulgaria, Romania, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, New Zealand, South Africa and The Netherlands (in Dutch and in Drents).

So What?
In view of the ever-rising number of diverse artists who embrace Newbury’s music, it seems birds of a different feather can flock together. From bar rooms to ballrooms, from China to Czechoslovakia, from the 60’s to today… Newbury’s songs just keep on going. Great music knows no boundaries.
Notes on Methodology (a method to the madness)

- Mickey detested hype and this research respects his position. There is no desire to dilute the list by inflating the count. Even though the same recording may be issued in multiple packages, it is counted only once. Otherwise, Elvis Presley would be listed over 100 times for “An American Trilogy,” and Kenny Rogers would be shown some 50 times for “Just Dropped In.”

- A live version is not regarded as an additional cover if a studio version is documented. Though employing this tactic would add hundreds of covers, integrity of the list is a higher priority.

- Different studio takes of the same song are valid. For example, Willie Nelson rendered unique cuts of “Just Dropped In” on his 2001 and 2002 studio albums; thus, they are counted individually.

- Though scores of karaoke versions could be added, we don’t… and we won’t.

One-million thanks to everybody who has helped over the years with this living list. Input is much appreciated.

"I wrote my first song when I was about 16. The title was The Sea of Life. At that age, I was sure I had seen enough of life to write about it... and you know what? I had. You are never too young or too old to start writing. It's a wonderful way to express what you are feeling that you may find difficult to share with even your closest friend. Simply write... what you are feeling and you can't go wrong."  Mickey Newbury

Got Down On Saturday (Sunday In The Rain) - Duane Allman w/ Soul Survivors

“Indicative of Mickey’s later writing, Good Morning Dear was more than a song - it was and is a slice of life. Just like his American Trilogy... Dear touches you in a surprising way, and surely springs from personal life as Mickey has lived it, and that makes it really precious. Mickey Newbury is a poet. There are good songwriters, and there are poets, and Mickey is both.” Pat Boone

Mickey’s Albums: An Inspiration To Many

On the importance of marrying the melody with words:

“It was the first thing I picked up from Newbury,” explains Kris Kristofferson. “It just blew me away, when Newbury got it just right, how simple lyrics and simple melodies worked in a way to break your heart.” Mick’s example of such a song? Modestly, he illustrated the point with a non-Newbury composition: Danny Boy, he said, “is one of the most perfect marriages of melody and lyric, which is very unusual.”

Newbury once explained the task this way: “When I write a song, I write the melody first. It’s like the words are being said in the melody, so my job is finding out what the words are.” This laborious process, the gestation of Newbury’s art, would ultimately deliver a perfect melding of melody and words. Sometimes five minutes, sometimes forty years... in due course a Newbury song was born.

The delivery was almost as painful to watch as it was for Mickey to experience. Good friend Marty Hall explained, “To my observation, his songwriting typically would begin with a sweet bit of melody and a line or two. He would then build on the lines until he had the basic structure of a song completed. Once he reached that point, the editing began, and it could go on literally forever. If there were ever a song he completed perfectly and forever, I did not know it. Mickey accepted the fact that he would only rarely come to a point of complete satisfaction with his own work, but that only meant that a truce with the musical universe was in place until a better word or verse struck him.”

“On a new song, Mickey would write verse after verse, carefully crafting each, and then he would assault each verse with his terrible swift pen, frequently abandoning entire verses and reordering the remaining verses. The words would transform, the verses would transform, and the song would transform. All of this was exhausting, and when it was over, it was typical for Mickey to need sleep. When he would awaken, he would start the process all over again, frequently going back to the discarded and previously edited verses and bringing them to mind yet again... He was as cruel a master as one could possibly have on his own work. He would hold himself to a standard that would frighten away the most gifted songwriters in the world. He would not compromise what he did, and if that meant throwing a verse away, or working at it 12 times to just get one portion of one line in just the right fashion that he wanted it, he would do it. He was absolutely committed to the quality of his craft.”

Mickey (r) with Jack Williams
Townes mentioned the way Mickey's voice touched him. "It was really funny trying to explain. I can't call it 'explain' but I'd tried to tell Jeanene (Townes' wife) about the sound of Mickey's voice and the guitar on a good night at the same time. It's hard; you can't do it. It's like from outer space. I've heard about people trying to explain color to a blind person. Like Helen Keller. There's no way to do it."

“'I'll sit around with a guitar and do a melody for days. I'll gradually fill in the words to match the rhythm of the song. Sometimes a few words, sometimes a little melody. Then at other times everything all at once. Just no rules! Occasionally, I'll go through an exercise to find a word. I'll write skeletons. Say I'm writing a melody. The song is already there; my problem is getting it. What I'll do is get it at a piece at a time. I'll sit down and take the first line, and maybe one word will leap out. Then I'll find the words to put around it. Once I get those, I can pull a thread out of it.” Mickey Newbury

(Williams & Ree are also known as "The Indian and the white guy.")

“I have a good song on one of my albums about being down and out at a bus station. In order to write that good song, I had to be down and out at a bus station. In order for Kris Kristofferson to write a good song about being down and out at a bus station, he needs to ride by and have a look. Newbury doesn’t even have to see a bus station. He can stay in the mountains of Oregon and write a better song than both of us. He has his own tripping device in his head, and it’s a great cosmic gift.”
